

LIVING IRON

Living Iron specialises in the design and construction of internal and external balustrading and fencing for both commercial and residential projects.

Specialising in handcrafted work that could be considered 'jewellery for your home', Living Iron produces a wide range of finishing products, from fencing and balustrading to ornamental pieces.

The company was founded in 1998 by qualified blacksmith Craig Parton, who has built an award-winning steel fabrication company supported by a team of highly skilled and experienced staff.

Staff work closely with each client to custom-design pieces that suit their specific function and exude a personal style.

Living Iron specialises in a wide range of fencing and balustrading for internal and external areas, from rustic and ornate to sleek and modern. Views need not be spoiled by unsightly gates and fences when Living Iron is called upon to design and create an alternative. Rather than being a barrier, your fencing can be transformed into a feature that is attractive while being purposeful.

In addition, the service for all fencing, gates and balustrading incorporates design, fabrication and on-site installation.

Each custom-made product can then be completed with a wide choice of complementary finishes such as glass panels or timber handrails.

Living Iron has been commissioned to create many commercial projects, some of which have earned awards for their original design and quality workmanship. The walkways and lookouts that weave through Castle Rock in the Porongurups and the Perth Zoo orangutan enclosure are stunning examples of the craftsmanship that Living Iron produces for its clients.

Whether it's hand-forged decorative components to complete your pool area, or classic wrought iron balustrading for your internal staircase, Living Iron's creations will contribute to the ambience and personality of your home.
